

Animal life cycles

Match the pictures with the descriptions of each stage of the bear's life.

By the time a bear is five years old, it is ready to have babies of its own.

The baby is nursed for the rest of hibernation and they will get bigger and chubbier.

Baby bears are born during hibernation. The newborn cub lacks fur and cannot see until it's a few days old.

When the cub is a year old it is fully grown but is not as muscular or heavy as its mother.
