

Animal life cycles

Match the pictures with the descriptions of each stage of the cow's life.

Mammals always look like smaller versions of their parents.

Older cows just eat grass and hay.

A female cow is old enough to have a calf when they are about 2 years old.

The calf drinks its mothers milk once it's born.

When the calf is about 3 weeks old, it will start to eat grass, hay and pellets as well as milk.